II- READING COMPREHENSION (14 MARKS)

Read the following passage, then answer the questions below:

Life processes are similar in all animals with backbones and humans. So, scientists can find out a lot about the human body by studying animals such as frogs, mice and rabbits. Sometimes research involves the death of these animals. But scientists try their best not to hurt the animals. The animals are usually put to sleep during the experiments so they do not feel pain. Many people think animals should not be used for experiments. But it is the only way by which scientists can test how good the medicine is for both animals and humans.

Scientists spend years and years to find out ways to fight back diseases that threaten human life. Scientists found out, through research and experiments that many medicines can be found in plants. They spend hours and hours in labs trying to find out the secrets of plants and how they can turn into medicine. There are new ideas that are found every day thanks to the efforts of the scientists inside labs. Then they start finding out how good these ideas through experimenting on animals.
