VI- Reading Comprehension and Summary making (120 Marks)*Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below:

A common complaint among teenagers today is about having too little freedom. The usual response from their parents is that they had even less freedom when they were young. Unfortunately for the average teenager, their parents are usually right. Today's youths do have more freedom than before, especially in the three areas of knowledge, communication and money.

Today's youths have more freedom to find and exchange information. The foremost reason for this is, of course, the invention of the Internet and other forms of information technology. Youths are free to obtain information from websites like Wikipedia. They are also able to share information with one another easily through blogs and other wikis. This new information freedom was not available to most of the previous generation.

Besides that, youths today have more social freedom than before. Social networks like Facebook, WhatsApp and Skype running over the Internet allow young people to make new friends. They can communicate with other people more easily than ever before. They can also update themselves with the latest happenings around the world. While the previous generation did have access to telephones, today's youths often own mobile phones, which help them share pictures, music and videos easily. This has enabled today's youths to have more freedom in their social life.

Finally, youths today have more freedom with their money. In the olden days, children had to ask their parents for money whenever they needed to buy something. Modern parents are more likely to give their children enough pocket money monthly. Parents today are more educated and believe in teaching their children how to manage money from a young age. Once they have decided on a reasonable amount of money for their child, they leave it to their child to decide on how to spend and manage that money.

In conclusion, youths today have more freedom than before. This is clear in their increased freedom to access information. It can also be seen in their social and economic freedom. Indeed, youths have little to complain about if they compare the level of freedom they enjoy to the restricted lifestyle of their parents' teenage years.
